Picnic at Park.

A lively time was indulged in last Tuesday afternoon, by some of Emporium's most popular young ladies. A picnic was given at the Keystone Park in honor of Miss Josephine Bentley, of Lock Haven, who was the guest of Miss Belle Husted. Those present were: Misses Mazie Gallagher, Flora and Martha Schiecht, Verena, Alma and Hilda Hertig, Grace and Marguerite Metzger, Carolyn and Kate Lechner, Mayme Cummings, Belle Husted, Myrtle Gregory and Mrs. Ray Husted. The party was chaperoned by Master Bentley Husted.

Base Ball.

The Emporium base ball team will play its fifth game of the season, on Friday, June 24th, lining up against the Sterling Run team. The boys have been playing good ball, having won three and lost one game so far this season. The team has won two games from St. Marys and one from Sterling Run and lost one with St. Marys. The club is composed of young talent who are rapidly learning the finer points of the game, through good consistent practise every night. The great trouble has been the lack of funds, the boys being forced to pay the visiting team's expenses from their own pockets. All base ball fans should turn out next Friday and help the team. Sterling Run is coming up loaded to get even for last Saturday's defeat and all may be sure of seeing fast ball. Good practice and plenty of it is sure to develop fast ball. Admission for all will be fifteen cents. Don't forget the date, go and "root" for the home team and encourage them.

REPUBLICANS NAME TICKET.

The Shortest Convention Ever Held in Pennsylvania.

The Republican State Convention yesterday nominated a complete State ticket in the shortest convention ever held in Harrisburg or anywhere else in Pennsylvania since the birth of the party. In a harmonious gathering presided over by that ablest of parliamentarians, William E. Crow, of Fayette, which began at 10:35 and ended at 11:59. The following ticket was selected for the four State offices to be filled in November:

For Governor,
JOHN K. TENER,
Charleroi, Washington county.
For Lieutenant Governor,
CONGRESSMAN JOHN M. REYNOLDS,
Bedford county.
For State Treasurer,
C. FRED WRIGHT,
Susquehanna county.

A strong platform was adopted and ex-Speaker Henry F. Walton, of Philadelphia, elected State chairman in succession to the lamented Col. Wesley Andrews. Half an hour after the convention adjourned the certificates of nomination for each candidate was on file in the State Capitol.

It was a wonderful convention. It contained the leaders of the party in the citadel of Republicanism and every nonination was made by acclamation. Men who had come to Harrisburg urging the nomination of aspirants other than those selected joined with the adherents of the successful men in making the convention a model for expiditious dispatch of business, harmony and enthusiasm. The party presents a united front and the delegates and sightseers left the city this afternoon cheering for the ticket and rejoicing in the prospects of victory in November.

Sinnamahoning Odd Fellows.

The members of Sinnamahoning Lodge No. 1138 I. O. O. F. held a Class initiation on Saturday evening. The work was performed by the Renovo Degree Staff in an able manner. A banquet was served to visitors from Lock Haven, Renovo, Emporium, Driftwood and Hicks Run. A class of eight was initiated into the mysteries of the first and second degrees of Odd Fellowhip. Ninty-three members sat at the banquet tables and all had a good time. Addresses were made by Bros. George Morton and C. F. VanGordan, of Renovo. Brother Fox, of Lock Haven also made an able address. I. O. O. F. No. 1138 is on the gain. Come again, brothers the latch string will always be out. DERSE.

Big Fire at Kane.

Fire broke out yesterday in the Kane Sliding Blind Company's factory and destroyed the whole plant, entailing a loss of over $30,000 with only $10,000 insurance. Just what caused the fire is not definately known but it is supposed to have originated in one of the finishing rooms where considerable oil and varnish is used. During the process, oily waste is used in rubbing and it is thought that a fire was caused by spontaneous combustion.

Injured in Woods.

A young man, by the name of Davis, from Rich Valley, received a bad cut on the left leg below the knee, on Wednesday morning, which required several stitches to draw it together. The accident occurred while he was at his work in Howard's woods. Dr. H. S. Falk was the attending physician.

Violation of Trespassing Law.

Trespassing on railroad property in violation of the law has caused the death of more than 50,000 people in the United States in the last eleven years. In this same period more than 55,000 trespassers have been injured.

With a view to reducing to a minimum the practice of trespassing on its property, the Pennsylvania Railroad has determined to redouble its efforts to secure on its lines that rigid enforcement of the law against trespassing which in foreign countries has done so much to decrease the number of fatalities resulting from trespassing.

In 1907 the Pennsylvania inaugurated a vigorous campaign against trespassing, and, due doubtless to this, the number of trespassers killed in 1908 was only 757. In 1909, 732 lost their lives in this way. In the eleven years prior to January 1st, 1910, exactly 7,972 people who were on the Pennsylvania Railroad's right of way in wilful violation of the law, in spite of thousands of warning signs along the railroad, were killed. It is thus seen that in the eleven years an average of two trespassers a day have been killed on Pennsylvania Railroad property.

This long death roll is every year charged up to the Railroad even though these people are killed as a result of their violating the law, and under conditions over which the Company has no control.

It is not only tramps who are killed and injured while trespassing, though thousands of them lose their lives this way every year. Men of the laboring class, factory workmen, their wives and children, who use railroad tracks as thoroughfares, are killed by hundreds. That the practice of walking on railroad tracks is prevalent in industrial districts gives added significance to the fatalities on the Pennsylvania System as a result of trespassing. The tracks of the Pennsylvania are lined with factories, as they run through the densest industrial section, through territory which holds more than half of the population of the United States. Over 10,000 trespassers were arrested in the year 1909.

In 1898, 4,063 trespassers lost their lives on American railroads; five years later the number was 5,000 and in 1907 the number killed was 5,612—more than 15 a day. These figures are taken from the annual reports of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Figures compiled by the Pennsylvania Railroad alone show that 465 trespassers lost their lives on that System's lines in 1899; 781 were killed in 1904; while in 1907 the number reached 915—an average of almost three for every business day in the year.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has now posted its tracks and stationed watchmen to see that warnings against trespassing are respected. By redoubling its efforts the Company is endeavoring to reduce the number of trespassers who are killed and injured by an even greater number than it has done in the past three years.

The co-operation of City and County authorities has been solicited in this campaign. Heretofore the actual punishment of persons violating the laws forbidding trespassing on a railroad's private property has been infrequent. The cost of imprisonment has deterred the local courts from holding those arrested while trespassing on railroad property.

Joe Johnson Heard From.

Our old friend "Joe" Johnson, of Colfax, Wash., writes ye editor as follows:

"Gee! that Cameron County PRESS set my think-tank a-going, until retrospection carried me back to 1860, when I first set foot on Cameron county soil within the sacred precincts of 'Old Shippen.' That was 50 years ago but I can jump like 70 now; "two-step" like the bear used to on 4th Street of your city for the edification of Tom Gallagher, Lyman Wiley, etc., "by gravy," and yell as audibly as when hauling supplies up the street in the "wee small" hours of the morning. Thanks for the paper, as well as for the compliments it contained, especially the latter part of the article, all of which were greatly appreciated. When marching down the "Golden streets of the New Jerusalem," all our political sins will have been forgotten, and where all will belong to a truly G. O P. Here are stamps for which please send me copies of the June 2nd issue, and oblige. Some day will say more.

Cameron Sheriff Has a Way All His Own.

The Sheriff of Cameron County passed through Punxsutawney Tuesday with a prisoner, a man captured at Trade City, and wanted on an aggravated assault and battery charge.

At DuBois the Sheriff stopped over a short time between trains, and visited friends. Asked what he was doing in these parts, the Sheriff explained:

"Oh, I've got a prisoner."

"Where is he?" the friend asked.

"At the station," was the reply.

"Is he guarded?"

"No. What's the use?"

"Aren't you afraid he'll run away?"

"Where in the name of Josephus would he run to? He hasn't got a sou."

When the Sheriff returned to the station his man was there waiting for him.

On another occasion Cameron county's sheriff, in company with a member of Troop D., State Police, after a hard chase, arrested a man for horse stealing. When arrested the man had the horse and rig which he had stolen, with him. The sheriff ordered him to get into his rig and drive to the county seat. The prisoner complied.

"When you get there," were the Sheriff's parting words, "put up at some hotel and come around to my office about six in the morning." With that the sheriff started off in another direction, leaving the horse thief to drive unattended to the county seat. Next morning, bright and early the horse thief reported according to instructions.

When asked by the State Policeman whether he wasn't afraid the man would escape, the sheriff replied: "Not much; he knows I'd get him."—Punxsutawney Spirit.

NEW NOTE SOUNDED

PEOPLE TO HEAR THE TRUTH ABOUT TARIFF BILL.

Facts as to Prosperity Following Enactment of Measure in Themselves a Reply to Attacks of Its Enemies.

A new note in tariff discussion was sounded by Vice-President Sherman at Kalamazoo, Mich., says the Detroit Journal. The work of explaining that bill to the people is now begun. For months it has been misrepresented by politicians in and out of congress, for months malcontent magazines, newspapers and politicians have been misinforming the people. Now we are to have some actual, factual exposition.

The Journal has already remarked that it is the only tariff bill that was not followed by hard times. Vice-President Sherman brought this home again to the audience at Kalamazoo. The ordinary receipts of the government, Mr. Sherman said, have increased more than $50,000,000 this year. A deficit of $70,000,000 last year is now only $15,000,000, and will be wiped out altogether by June 3. Importations have increased at the rate of $300,000,000 for the year and customs duties have increased in total $35,000,000. And the flood tide of prosperity sweeps every department of business with it.

Mr. Sherman in one passage referred to the recent speeches of Senators Dolliver and Cummins at Des Moines. He declares that these speeches were "a reflection upon the honesty and integrity of the president and the majority of the Republicans in both houses of congress." Then he cited part of Senator Dolliver's address:

"So far as the public is concerned, the tariff revision in fact carries rates as high or higher than the Dingley tariff law on most articles of general use in their finished condition. Most of the reductions were so trivial as to be ridiculous."

Against this series of mere words Mr. Sherman comes with the simple truth:

"The fact is that on most articles in general use the duty was materially reduced, being raised only in a few exceptional cases.

"Was the reduction of 60 per cent. on boots and shoes ridiculous? I should like to ask the senator.

"Was the reduction of 60 per cent. on lumber ridiculous? Was the reductions of 25 per cent. on meats ridiculous? Was the reduction of 55 per cent. on harness and saddle horses ridiculous? Was the reduction of 50 per cent. on steel rails, 60 per cent on iron ore, 37½ per cent. on sewing machines and typewriters ridiculous? Was the reduction of 20 to 50 per cent. on nails and spikes ridiculous? Was the entire repeal of the duty on hides and oil a ridiculous reduction?

"I could mention 650 articles, mostly of common use, on which the duty was very materially reduced, while increases were made on only 220 articles, most of them luxuries."

The declamation of Mr. Dolliver is not new. By many repetitions from many voices it has become as common as "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight." The enemies of the bill never wanted or needed time for observation, study and research. The friends of the bill, those who meant and tried to do well, have been waiting and observing. They are now ready to discuss it, and they will find that the country is ready also.

Free Trade and Emigration.

Emigration from the United Kingdom has been increasing rapidly this year, owing to the depressed condition of business in that country. The Standard of Empire, a British newspaper, states that "present indications from shipping offices and other agencies show that the total for the year is likely to be over 300,000." Sir Gilbert Parker, a member of the British parliament, speaking on this subject, said:

"There is depression in every department of our industrial life. Men shake the dust of England off their feet and say, 'Thank God!' as they go, because they go to countries where there is work to get and permanent work to be had—where they can increase their standard of living and claim a higher wage; where the workman and the manufacturer combine to defeat the unfair competition of foreign nations. No workman in any of our colonies or in the United States wants to come back to free trade; they had it and they had enough of it. That there should be exultation on the part of thousands of our fellow countrymen leaving these shores for want of opportunity to earn a decent living is a queer interpretation of the facts. No other country shows such an exodus; no other country wants to show it."

You've noticed that lots of baseball clubs win the pennant in February and March—just before the season opens. Let's see, for the last 50 years hasn't the Democratic party been winning most of its elections in May and June?

Serene.

Yet above it all, the president stands perfectly unruffled, strong in his own integrity and in the respect and confidence of all honorable people, who must love him the more for the kind of enemies that are sedulously seeking by innuendo to traduce him.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Let's see; we haven't had a Democratic congress since the panic days of '93. And wow! didn't we get a stomachfull at that time?

BEWARE OF SECOND ERROR

Good Advice Concerning Tariff, Given by the Ohio Republican League.

People in Ohio can remember when bogus peddlers went through the state after the passage of the McKinley tariff bill explaining that the high prices they asked for their saucepans and dippers was because "everything's gone up on account of the new tariff." And Ohio slipped in her political moorings and sent a Democrate delegation to congress—but has since furnished the nation with two Republican presidents.

Don't be fooled again!

Ohio Republicans remember that when they awakened from their hysteria over the McKinley bill, they elected its author governor by a majority unprecedented in the political history of the Buckeye state.

Just now the Democrats are persistently repeating, as they reiterated twenty years ago, that increases in prices today are "due to new tariff law." And there is just as much truth in their present-day assertions as there was in their reckles slanders of the McKinley bill.

Don't be fooled again!

Bear in mind that while lumber has advanced, the Payne tariff reduced the schedule on common boards 75 cents a thousand feet.

Do not forget that though the wholesale price of shoes has been increased recently, hides went on the free list through the enactment of the Payne law.

Remember that the woolen schedule was unchanged except in two minor instances where it was reduced, from the Dingley duties, and that therefore the Payne law can in no way be responsible for advances in the prices of clothing.

Don't be fooled again!—Ohio Republican League.

Why the Knocker?

Wages are higher and still ascending; farmers are everywhere prosperous; the unemployed are few and skilled and unskilled labor is in demand; banks are flourishing; manufacturers are making money; prosperity is general, and no great evil confronts the people. Then why the knocker? What business has he under such conditions? He says the cost of living is too high. The cost of living has always been too high for people who would buy more than they can pay for; but high or low, the cost of living has not yet been found in guilty connection with the tariff, while the ability of the wage-earner to pay that cost is dependent largely upon the tariff.—Tarkio (Mo.) Avalanche.

Give Credit to Tariff System.

Nowhere else in the world is there the buying power of the American wage-earner, the general consumer who earns his living—and he makes up virtually the whole of our race. A day's work for the man who is earning his living in the United States under our tariff system will get him more of the food, clothes and luxuries he seeks, will give him the best housing, will provide him more amusements and will enable him to lay up larger savings than are to be had out of a day's work, on the average, anywhere else on earth.—New York Press.

Facts to Be Remembered.

This is a point that Republicans during their campaign should dwell upon in every stump speech. Whatever of dissatisfaction there may be with certain schedules in the Payne-Aldrich act, it has prostrated no industry, reduced no wages, precipitated no depression. Instead, there has been a tremendous revival of business, hundreds of thousands of men have had their wages increased since its passage, and it holds no menace for the future. Why, therefore, a Democratic house?—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

People Learning to Know Taft.

Taft's strength is rapidly becoming more appreciated. His high purpose; his courage to battle for the right, are becoming more understood, and not so very many months will elapse before the American people will realize the truth of this prediction privately made by President Roosevelt, two months before Mr. Taft's nomination: "Before his first term shall have expired Judge Taft will be the most popular and best beloved president this country has had since the civil war."—Ohio Republican League.

Outlook Not Discouraging.

With factional differences ironed out the outlook for a fairly good sessional record is becoming brighter. If the Republicans can succeed in passing a substantial part of their program throughout the two houses they will be in a vastly better position to enter the campaign this fall than if nothing had been accomplished, and the threatening clouds of a few weeks ago will disappear before November.—Detroit Free Press.

Taft's Judicial Appointments.

If Mr. Taft had accomplished nothing else as president, the wise judgment he has shown in the appointments he has made to the Supreme court would sufficiently entitle him to the gratitude and confidence of the country.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Business Instinct.

An English farmer, taking his little son with him, was going to the polling station to give his vote. On the way he met a friend on the same errand, and the two entered into conversation. After an excited and heated argument about the budget they came to blows. The poor lad was much frightened, and, seeing that his father was getting the worst of it, suddenly called out to him:

"Hit him in the watch, father; that'll cost him something!"

Reasoning of Youthful Mind.

A schoolmistress whose hair was of the blackest hue, was one day giving a lesson on a coal mine to a class in Suffolk, England. To make the lesson interesting as possible she went on to say she had herself been in a coal mine. If you are a business man, did you ever think of the field of opportunity that advertising opens to you? There is almost no limit to the possibilities of your business if you study how to turn trade into your store. If you are not getting your share of the business of your community there's a reason. People go where they are attracted—where they know what they can get and how much it is sold for. If you make direct statements in your advertising see to it that you are able to fulfill every promise you make. You will add to your business reputation and hold your customers. It will not cost as much to run your ad in this paper as you think. It is the persistent advertiser who gets there. Have something in the paper every issue, no matter how small. We will be pleased to quote you our advertising rates, particularly on the year's business.

MAKE YOUR APPEAL

to the public through the columns of this paper. With every issue it carries its message into the homes and lives of the people. Your competitor has his store news in this issue. Why don't you have yours? Don't blame the people for flocking to his store. They know what he has.

The Home Paper Gives you the reading matter in which you have the greatest interest—the home news. Its every issue will prove a welcome visitor to every member of the family. It should head your list of newspaper and periodical subscriptions.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?

Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.

Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.

If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.

We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.

If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will best serve your interests when you want to reach the people of this community.

JOB PRINTING We can do the finest class of printing, and we can do that class just a little cheaper than the other fellow. Wedding invitations, letter heads, bill heads, sale bills, statements, dodgers, cards, etc., all receive the same careful treatment—just a little better than seems necessary. Prompt delivery always.

SOME FAMOUS WOMEN SPIES

By the COUNTESS KAROLEWITZ

THE COUNTESS KAROLEWITZ

IN no part of the world has the art of the women spy been brought so near perfection as in Europe. It may be unhesitatingly said that in Russia, which fairly swarms with eyes and ears of the czar, the dashing, beautiful woman, of high breeding and title, perhaps, has become the most necessary arm of that underground system which appears to read thoughts as well as detect designs.

The secret service of Russia and Japan is the most efficient in the whole world, and it must not be forgotten that Japan, too, has made use of women to ferret out the intentions of the Russian government regarding the Russo-Japanese war. They are not, as a rule, however, Japanese women, who are singularly unfitted for the delicate task. To meet the Russian spy on his or her own ground and Japanese have, it is said, secured the services of some of the cleverest women in Europe, many of them French women, and often their visible means of support is by acting. Shortly before the war burst suddenly in the far east, an English manager was conducting a Japanese troupe through Europe, and the tour led to Russia. While the troupe of actors was in Budapest a young Japanese pleaded so hard to join the company that he finally persuaded the manager to take him. He was tried upon the stage, but was found singularly incompetent. However, something was found for him to do, and he did not want much salary, so he was allowed to remain with the company while it went through the czar's empire.

MADAM MIDGE-HUNE

Practically nothing was known of the young man, but he was educated, a pleasant companion, and appeared to have plenty of money. After the tour ended the manager discovered he was the son of the Japanese admiral whose name frequently appeared in the newspapers in connection with the wonderful naval feats he accomplished during the war. In the same company were several clever Japanese women, who kept their eyes and ears open during the tour, and there is little doubt that their reports to their government had something to do with the rapidity with which the Japanese struck the first blow.

The Japanese police and military system has, of course, its secret service; but it is not nearly so ubiquitous as is the so-called Third Section of the Russian police. Yet during the last few years there has little of importance transpired in Europe affecting the situation in the far east of which the Japanese foreign office has long been ignorant. Her agents, the best of them those so-called French actresses, have found a way of being present wherever there was anything to be learned. Often these women encountered the women spies of the Russian government, who are undoubtedly among the cleverest detectives in their line in the world.

Governments at war, or on the brink of hostilities, require the services of two distinct classes of spies. There must be many men connected with this dangerous service; but for the most part the work demands courage and skill rather than the delicate diplomacy which is required, too, but is generally, certainly so far as Russia is concerned, assigned to women of culture, education, beauty and rare judgment. With the troops of the enemy are sent the men spies, and with the commanding officers, with the diplomats, with the brains which sit in St. Petersburg and move armies 5,000 miles away as if they were pawn son a chess board, the ingratiating, clever women spies are to be found.

While the Japanese have not been regarded as having an especially efficient secret service, the events of the war demonstrated that the persons who were watching day and night for them had been of the greatest value. It is known that just about the time the war broke out there were in Port Arthur several French dancers, who had captured every Russian official heart.

They were not only attractive dancers, but beautiful women, who dressed well and had most engaging manners. The Russian officers were charmed with them. They soon became better acquainted and proved to be very agreeable companions. They took a great interest in things military, but always made amazing blunders in attempting to repeat what had been told them. The womanly ignorance of such matters charmed the young officers all the more, and at the same time put them off their guard. But, as a matter of fact, they were very clever women, and their information was speedily forwarded to the Japanese legation at Peking, which, in turn, forwarded valuable reports to Tokyo. By the time their true character was known the French actresses, who were spies for the Japanese, had left Port Arthur far behind.

The arms of the Russian Third Section are clasped around the globe, although its cleverest representatives are those bright women who abound in Europe, who exist on the excitement to be derived by battling their wits against those of others equally clever, and by taking part in the delicate intricacies of European diplomacy. For this particular work it has been found that women are far more valuable than men. They are quick-witted, fearless and full of resources, able to instantly detect a move and its full import, able to checkmate attempts to destroy their work, and always outwardly the lovely, intellectual woman, without a care in the world.

These women are to be met with wherever fashionable people and officials congregate in Europe—Monaco and, in fact, all along the Riviera. There are hosts of Russians in exile. In Paris the Nihilists meet unobstructed by police; but their every movement is reported to the Third Section in St. Petersburg. A few years ago a certain "Mlle. Sense" was in Washington. She spoke the purest Parisian, and readily passed for a French woman. In Russian she is Mme. Sitzki, one of the cleverest of the czar's women spies. She is a woman of great beauty, of high birth and perfect breeding. While she was in Washington she gave lessons in French to children in several of the embassies, and, no doubt, learned much to interest her government. Mme. Macaborivitz, who is said to be the widow of a Russian officer, is generally considered the most beautiful of the white czar's women spies. She has been all over the world, and has also used her eyes and ears in Japan to the satisfaction of her government. She is a woman whom no man could refuse anything, and consequently has artfully acquired a knowledge of international politics of surprising value.

There is also in the list of clever women Madame Midge-Hune, a pretty coquette, who has been on the Riviera for years, where all the men have fallen at her feet. Once it was reported that she was engaged to an English nobleman; but it appears she jilted him, for, British-like, he had taken the beauty too seriously. The Countess Karolewitz and Madame Soski-Hunegen are other women who have pried into the the secrets of many international intrigues with success.

During the period when the relations between Russia and Japan were becoming more strained with each successive day, St. Petersburg society discovered there were several very beautiful Parisiennes in the city. They were not only very beautiful, but charming, and most of them fell in love with young officers of rank. They had letters of introduction and were warmly welcomed in official circles.

One night at a ball given at one of the legations, one of the charming French women was present. She was very friendly with the colonel of a Russian regiment and several times she ineffectually attempted to draw him into a conversation, the burden of which was the length of time he expected to be detained in St. Petersburg, for it was a frequent occurrence for a regiment to be sent to the far east. At each attempt she was interrupted by a dashing Russian woman who happened to be in the vicinity of the pair. Finally the French woman noticed the peculiar circumstance and inquired of the officer the name of the woman who seemed to hover around them like an eagle over prey. He told her, and then she knew her mission was at an end, for she had been detected by one of the cleverest Russian spies.

The Modernist in Religion.

Modernism is not accidental or local, but general and characteristic. It is in the air. The modernist has no serious definite quarrel with the teachings of the church. He is contending, not for a new doctrine, but for a new attitude. What he objects to is, not orthodoxy, but finality. He maintains the right to examine the assertions of the old divines and of the new alike with equal freedom; he sees nothing sacrosanct in creeds; believing in the Holy Spirit, he expects a constant progress in religion, out of the imperfection of the past into the improvement of the future. He is not inclined to agree with Mr. Chesterton when he says: "An open mind is a mark of folly, like an open mouth. Minds, like mouths, were made to shut." He finds that a closed mouth may belong to a man who is dumb, or ignorant, or afraid; and he infers that the closed mind is a sign of similar conditions. He claims the right to make experiments — and mistakes. His supreme purpose is to restate religion in the terms of current thought for the better application of it to the needs of current life.—George Hodges, in the Atlantic.

Didn't Get an Interview

Representative Norris Rather Played It "Low Down" on Unsophisticated Newspaper Man.

Since the day when Representative George W. Norris of Nebraska introduced his resolution deposing Speaker Cannon as a member of the committee on rules and enlarging that august body correspondents have felt that their day's work is never complete unless they look up the Nebraskan to get the news from the Insurgent camp.

A member of the press gallery saw Mr. Norris coming out of the house restaurant a day or two ago and asked him to express his views about the retirement of Senators Aldrich and Hale. Mr. Norris did so in his characteristic language, intimating very plainly that the people of the country ought to be glad that the power of the regulars in the senate was being broken.

"Anything else on your mind?" asked the correspondent, preparing to go upstairs and reduce the observations of the Insurgent to print.

"I have nothing else myself," remarked Mr. Norris after a moment's thought. "I think, however, I know where I can put you on to a good story, but I rather hesitate to do so."

"What is the yarn about?" he was asked.

"Oh," observed Norris, "it is right in line with the retirement of these two distinguished senators. In fact, it relates to the retirement of a distinguished member of the house. On second thought, I hesitate to do so. I don't think the member wants the fact to become known just yet."

The correspondent pleaded earnestly for the tip, and finally Norris agreed to give it to him.

"I have just come from the members' dining room," said Norris. "Being late in the afternoon, there is only one member of the house left in there. He is now eating his lunch. He has gray hair and gray whiskers and wears a carnation in his coat. You go in there and tell him you are a personal friend of mine and that I would regard it as a personal favor if he would tell you the story of his retirement from congress."

The correspondent followed instructions and found the man who answered the description given by Norris. It was Speaker Cannon, quietly munching a bowl of crackers and milk.—Washington Times.

Those Complexion Beautifiers.

"Of course," says the first fair young thing, "I am not at all conceited about it, nor am I unduly proud, but I think it is something to boast of when I can say that poems have been written about my eyebrows and my hair and my lips and my cheeks and my hands."

"How nice!" coos the second fair young thing. "I have read those poems."

"You have? I didn't know they had been published. Where did you see them?"

"On some street car cards, as advertising."

A Most Important Crop.

"How do you desire to be uplifted?" is the question a writer in the New York Sun puts into the mouth of the commissioner at the farmer's door.

"Wal," replied Farmer Hayrick, "ye might start in by growing a better class of city boarders."—Youth's Companion.

GNAT CAUSES PELLAGRA.

Committee on Disease in Europe Says Corn Is Not to Blame.

London, May 14.—Dr. Sambon, a member of the Field committee which has been investigating the disease pellagra, telegraphs from Rome that the committee has definitely proved that maize or Indian corn is not the cause of pellagra.

The committee finds that the parasitic conveyor of the disease is the "simulium repans," a species of biting gnat.

A Wonder Worker.

Sapleigh—Ah, speaking of electricity, that makes me think—

Miss Keene—Really, Mr. Sapleigh? Isn't it remarkable what electricity can do!

"Worn to a Frazzle."

When President Roosevelt popularized the word "frazzle" he reminded lots of women of the only expression that tells how they feel after the work of washday or housecleaning with common old yellow laundry soap. Easy Task laundry soap—the hard, white, pure, quick-action soap—cuts the work square in two and keeps women from getting frazzled out.

Made His Reputation.

Harker—That fellow Bilkins is an enthusiast, isn't he?

Parker—That's what! You know he likes to speak of himself as a sportsman?

Harker—Yes.

Parker—Well, the only thing he ever did in that line was to go on a wild goose chase three years ago.

Good Work Proceeds Slowly.

At the present rate of increase nearly forty-five years must elapse before sufficient hospital accommodations to provide for all the indigent consumptives in the United States will be provided, declares the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Although over 7,000 beds in hospitals, sanatoria, camps and wards for tuberculous patients were established last year, there are fully 300,000 indigent consumptives who ought to be placed in such institutions and a total of only 22,720 beds in the entire country. On May 1, 1909, there were 15,244 beds for consumptives and 294 institutions. The annual report of the national association shows an increase of 99 institutions and 7,500 beds.

Is this boy as I nurtured with a parent's care into his childhood's hour—is he goin' to be a grate American humorist? Alars, I fear it is too troo. Why didn't I bind him out to the Patent Travelin Vegetable Pil Man, as was struck with his appearance at our last county fair, & wanted him to go with him and be a Pillist? A Horse Lover.

James R. Keene, who is noted no less as a horseman than as a financier, said at a luncheon at his Cedarhurst residence:

"My love of horses has been a great comfort to me all my life. I have always kept my horses in their place, though. I haven't allowed them to interfere with my business.

"Some men carry their love of horses altogether too far. Such a one was a young father who stood, with his fair wife, before the crib of their first born.

"'Isn't he wonderful?' the young mother cried. 'Did you ever see anything like him at twenty-six months?'

"'Maternal love is all very well,' the father retorted, impatiently, 'but please don't try to compare it with a two-year-old thoroughbred.'"

FEED CHILDREN

On Properly Selected Food. It Pays Big Dividends.

If parents will give just a little intelligent thought to the feeding of their children the difference in the health of the little folks will pay, many times over, for the small trouble.

A mother writes saying: "Our children are all so much better and stronger than they ever were before we made a change in the character of the food. We have quit using potatoes three times a day with coffee and so much meat.

"Now we give the little folks some fruit, either fresh stewed, or canned, some Grape-Nuts with cream, occasionally some soft boiled eggs, and some Postum for breakfast and supper. Then for dinner they have some meat and vegetables.

"It would be hard to realize the change in the children, they have grown so sturdy and strong, and we attribute this change to the food elements that, I understand, exist in Grape-Nuts and Postum.

"A short time ago my baby was teething and had a great deal of stomach and bowel trouble. Nothing seemed to agree with him until I tried Grape-Nuts softened and mixed with rich milk, and he improved rapidly and got sturdy and well."

Read "The Road to Wellville," found in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

ON THE COLLEGE NINE.

"'Tain't no use talkin', Cyrus, thet boy of ourn certainly do love th' country. He writ me er letter yesterday an' sez he was overjoyed 'cause ther going ter put him in th' right field next summer."

16 YEARS OF SKIN DISEASE

"For sixteen long years I have been suffering with a bad case of skin disease. While a child there broke out a red sore on the legs just in back of my knees. It waxed from bad to worse, and at last I saw I had a bad skin disease. I tried many widely known doctors in different cities but to no satisfactory result. The plague bothered me more in warm weather than in winter and being on my leg joints it made it impossible for me to walk, and I was forced to stay indoors in the warmest weather. My hopes of recovery were by this time spent. Sleepless nights and restless days made life an unbearable burden. At last I was advised to try the Cuticura remedies [Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills] and I did not need more than a trial to convince me that I was on the road of success this time. I bought two sets of the Cuticura Remedies and after these were gone I was a different man entirely. I am now the happiest man that there is at least one true care for skin diseases. Leonard A. Hawtof, 11 Nostrand Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., July 30 and Aug. 8, '09."

Science In Farming.

The farmers of Pennsylvania are showing their faith in agricultural education by sending several hundreds of their sons to the School of Agriculture in The Pennsylvania State College. The growth of this school in this State institution has been remarkable. The criticism made of some State agricultural schools that they train boys wholly away from the farm will not apply to Pennsylvania. One hundred and seventy of the four hundred and seventy-nine students enrolled in the School of Agriculture last year took courses that fit only for rural life, while a considerable percentage of the remaining number, who are taking the four years' college courses, expect to engage in some department of practical farming.

The Two Years' Course in Agriculture attracts young men who have not been able to prepare for a four years' course, and it fits men for practical work only and not for professional life. A booklet has been prepared for free distribution that describes the work offered in this course, and it presents some fine illustrations that are descriptive of the work in the School of Agriculture. Students are shown engaged in livestock judging, horticultural work and other practicum. An excellent picture of the students engaged in military drill is shown on the last cover page. This attractive booklet may be secured without charge by sending a postal card request addressed to School of Agriculture and Experiment Station, State College, Centre county, Pa. Every young man who wants to know the science of agriculture and its useful application, and has not had the advantage of school preparation for a four years' college course, should take advantage of this Two Years' Course in The Pennsylvania State College.

A Steady Drain.

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body, Make You Ill, Languid and Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broad-cast through the system, sowing the seed of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Great Emporium cures prove it.

Lee Halderman, Allegany Ave., Emporium, Pa., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and have found them to be a cure for backache and pains in the loins. I also know that this remedy acts as a tonic to the entire system."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Company to Concede This.

In each and every case where Sexine Pills do not bring back your strength and steady nerves to any man or woman who has used six boxes, the company will either give—without additional cost—six boxes more for reinforced treatment, or will refund your five dollars. The company has been doing this for years and still does so, without quibble or red tape. Besides, they do not want you to hesitate to send in your claim if necessary.

R. C. Dodson, Druggist, Emporium, Pa., endorses every word of this.

Marvelous Discoveries

mark the wonderful progress of the age. Air flights on heavy machines, telegrams without wires, terrible war inventions to kill men, and that wonder of wonders—Dr. King's New Discovery—to save life when threatened by coughs, colds, la-grippe, asthma, croup, bronchitis, hemorages, hay fever and whooping cough or lung trouble. For all bronchial affections it has no equal. It relieves instantly. It's the surest cure. James M. Black of Asheville, N. C., R. R. No. 4, writes it cured him of an obstinate cough after all other remedies had failed. 50c. and $1.00. A trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all Druggists.

A Dreadful Wound

from a knife, gun, tin can, rusty nail, fireworks, or of any other nature, demands prompt treatment with Bucklen's Arnica Salve to prevent blood poison or gangrene. It's the quickest, surest healer for all such wounds as also for burns, Boils, Sores, Skin Eruptions, Eczema, Chapped Hands, Corns and Piles. 25c. all druggists.

MISSES SEGER ENTERTAINS.

One of the most enjoyable dancing and card parties held in Emporium for several years, was that given by the Misses Louise and Ida Seger, in honor of their guest and cousin, Miss Rose Singler, of Morgan Park, Ill. The very pleasant affair was given at the Opera House, last Thursday evening. The Hall was very prettily decorated for the occasion. On the left of the entrance cozy corners were fixed and contained tables for card playing and to the right were arranged the tables where the refreshments were served. A program consisting of twenty dances with several encores and cards were the chief features of entertainment. Mrs. Josephine Woodley, presiding at the piano, assisted by Mr. Lawrence Fisk with the drums, made the dances most enjoyable. After the program was half finished, a light collation was served. During the intermission, Miss Singler, the guest of honor, favored the guests with two vocal selections, which were heartily enjoyed. Miss Singler possesses a very sweet and well trained voice and her selections were well rendered. She is a member of a glee chorus in Chicago, composed of 1,000 picked singers, and those who had the extreme pleasure of hearing her enjoyed a rare treat. The dancing was continued until the "wee sma' hours" and even then the guests were reluctant to leave the scene, where they had passed several happy hours. The Misses Seger are royal entertainers and have a very pleasing manner which makes their guests feel perfectly at ease and to realize that the evening is before them for a good time. This was greatly manifested at the happy assemblage last Thursday evening.

The invited guests for the evening were as follows: Mrs. R. Seger, Mrs. N. Seger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seger, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Seger, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Forbes, Mrs. Josephine Woodley, Mrs. Anna Aimes, Misses Marion Judd, Mayme Cummings, Nell Thomas, Encie Howard, Kate Lechner, Julia Hogan, Jean McNarney, Kate Metzger, Carolyn Lechner, Theresa Blumle, Marion Rentz, Esther Tumpousky, Francis Blumle, Elizabeth Lechner, Helen Smutz, Gladys Lloyd, Helen Blumle, Carolyn Cox, Christy MacDonald, Anna Ashall, Kathryn Hogan, Agnes Blumle, Lena Coyle, Kate Zimmett, Mazie Gallagher, Flora Schlecht, Martha Schlecht, Vera Geary, Elizabeth Crandell and Messrs. G. A. Walken, A. H. Forbes, Russell McQuay, Warner Judd, Scott Sterner, Herbert Vogt, Leo Hayes, Fred Keim, Gordon Vogt, Frank Blumle, Guy Thompson, Carl Thompson, Edward Breene, Edward Foster, Harold Seger, Charles Farrell, Mose Harris, Edward Baldwin, Willard Cope, Charles Lambert, Max Balcom, Everett Pierson, Harry Anderson, Hubert Brady, Theo. Cordie, of Sinnamahoning, and Don Minnick, of Ridgway.

Whist Parties.

Emporium ladies have been busy entertaining at whist parties during the past week. The following ladies have had card parties, Mesdames I. K. Hockley, Grant S. Allen, Leon R. Felt and Lizzie Hinkle.

Promoters of a "safe and sane" Fourth of July at Bradford, have secured a supply of stamps printed under their direction, and advocating their cause. A Woman's Great Idea is how to make herself attractive. But, without health, it is hard for her to be lovely in face, form or temper. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and Kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood, give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion, good health. Try them. 50c. at all druggists.

Goodyears Start on Ten-Year Job in McKean County.

SMETHPORT, JUNE 21. The Goodyear company is now at work in earnest clearing "The Big Woods," fifteen miles from here. There are about one thousand men located in twenty different lumber camps, and it is expected they will be employed for a period of about ten years. Only hemlock timber is being cut now, but as soon as this is exhausted the fine hardwood will be attended to. On the Emporium road on the outskirts of the woods a town is being built. Already there are about ten buildings, a store, barber shop, blacksmith shop, planing mill, where all sorts of wooden handles for steel instruments are turned out for the woodsmen a boarding house and several private dwellings. The store, owned by Chas. Hull & Co., is a model structure. Its frontage on the road is eighty feet, and it extends back for two hundred. When finished, its length will be two hundred feet more. The retailing portion of the store is nicely finished with metal ceiling, varnished counters, handsome shelves, and the office is equipped with all the modern necessities—cash register, telephone, safe, typewriter and large stands for accounts. The rest of the store is a huge warehouse where there is stored everything from pins and jewelry up to baled hay. In connection with the store, there is a slaughter house, where meat is handled on a large scale—sold only in quarters. It may well rival the Chicago stockyards in everything except size. The road leading to the new town is being graded, and the place will be found an interesting one to visit.

THE DEATH DICE.

A Murder Case In Which They Returned a Just Verdict.

The German emperor some time ago presented to the Hohenzollern museum the "death dice" with which one of his ancestors decided a difficult case in the seventeenth century. The history of these dice is generally given as follows:

A young girl had been murdered. Suspicion fell upon two young soldiers, Ralph and Alfred, who were suitors for her hand. They both denied their guilt, and even torture failed to extract a confession from either.

Then Elector Frederick William decided to cut the knot by means of the dice box. The two soldiers should throw for their lives and the loser should be executed as the murderer.

The event was celebrated with great solemnity. Ralph had the first chance and threw sixes, the highest possible number. The dice box was then given to Alfred. He fell on his knees and prayed. Then he rose to his feet and threw the dice with such force that one of them was broken. The whole one showed six, the broken one also gave six on the larger portion, and the fragment split off showed one. This was a total of thirteen, one beyond Ralph's throw. The audience held its breath in amazement.

"God has spoken!" cried the prince.

Ralph, appalled by what he regarded as a sign from heaven, confessed his guilt and was sentenced to death.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Got What She Wanted.

"I can stand for some things, but not for everything," said the clerk as he watched a stylishly dressed young woman leave the store.

"What is the matter?" asked the proprietor, who had walked up unobserved.

"That woman who just left hustled up to the counter and asked to see men's shirts. I showed her every style and color we carry. After inspecting the entire stock she rose and thanked me sweetly, adding: 'I didn't wish to purchase any. You see, I am making my husband some shirts, and I wanted to be sure I was doing them right. My husband is very particular about the finish of his shirts.' And they say married women are so considerate."

The boss smiled and walked away.—Boston Traveler.

The Sun.

It is computed that the temperature of the sun would be expressed by 18,000 degrees of Fahrenheit's thermometer, or about ninety times the temperature of boiling water. This is about five times the temperature that man is able to produce by artificial means. The light given off from the surface of the sun is reckoned as being 5,300 times more intense than that of the molten metal in a Bessemer converter, though that is of an almost blinding brilliancy, or, if we compare it with the oxyhydrogen flame, the sun sheds a light equal in brilliancy to 146 times the intensity of the limelight.

Plant That Feigns Death.

In South America there is a plant, a species of mimosa, which resorts to death feigning, evidently for the purpose of preventing grass eating animals from eating it. In its natural state this plant has a vivid green hue, but directly it is touched by a human finger or by any living animal it collapses into a tangle of apparently dead and withered stems. Among British wild plants the most sensitive to touch is the insectivorous sundew of English bogs.—London Globe.

"He sang before the Painters' club and painted pictures for the Musicians' union."—Cleveland Leader

The Boy's Shadow.

Recently the mother of a boy who is about twelve years of age made complaint before a Judge that her son was unruly and she feared he was associating with company that in the end would bring disgrace to him and her. The judge told the son to step near him, and in a pleasant tone of voice said, pointing to the parent. "Boy, there is the only true friend you have; obey her. Let me impress this on your mind; think of it, remember it! Whatever shadow you cast in life will follow you as long as you live and always keep up with you That is your reputation. It is always in sight and just your size exactly, and how proud and happy it will make your fond mother if you will stop going with bad youths and stand in such a position in the sunlight of heaven that your shadow will always be on the side of respectability. Go home this time with your mother, turn over a new leaf and prevent the law from sending you to the reform school." Golden words. No more pertinent truth was ever spoken; no wiser counsel ever proffered by mortal lips. Your reputation in your community is your shadow. It is exactly your size, and you can never get away from it; though you may flee a thousand miles of a cloudy day, the moment you show yourself in public your shadow is at your side. Your habits and modes of thought have left their imprint upon your features, unconsciously controlling your speech and action, and dissemble as much as you may, are constantly signaling from behind the mask that you are not what you pretend to be.—Ex.

An average of $83 every hour was paid out by the Odd Fellows of Pennsylvania for relief purposes during the year just closed, according to a report presented by Grand Secretary Joseph H. Mackey to the Grande lodge session at Williamsport. The total amount paid out for relief was $728,354,67, an average of $1,955,40 per day, but so large is the membership of the three-link fraternity in Pennsylvania the average cost per week to each member was less than ten cents.—Ex.

By a change in the form of the postal money order and the elimination of the mail advice to postmasters. Postmaster General Hitchcock expects to save the Government approximately $500,000 a year. The order making the changes was issued Friday by the Postmaster General. The money order form is two and a half inches longer than the one now in use. It consists of a stub, order with marginal checks, coupons to be retained by the postmaster who makes the payment and a recept for the remitter. The order and coupon both are to be mailed to the person in whose favor the order is drawn. The new form will be put into use as soon as the Public Printer can obtain the necessary supply of "safety" paper.

Hard words, unkind acts may be forgiven, but they may never be effaced from memory. An injustice that wrongs or injures or pains a brother, sister or friend stands there forever. You may atone for it, repent of it, try to repair it, make double or treble compensation for it, but you cannot recall it; it is done and never can be helped, though it might have been prevented before it happened. Many a hasty, inconsiderate act has led to a life of sorrow; many an act, even trivial, has been the occasion of frequent bitter memories for a long lifetime; whereas an act of kindness and forgiveness, which it would have been better and wiser and easier to do, would have rewarded the doers with a glow of graceful pride and pleasure, every time in after years it came to mind.—Ex.

"He Became Infatuated with a Woman of Disreputable Character."

"My Seconds Will Wait on You in the Morning," Said Hardy.

SYNOPSIS.

Frederick Hardy, a fashionable Boston society man, lost his wealth, was jilted by a girl and sent by a friend to take charge of an American Trading Company store in Russia. On his journey through Japan he met Stapleton Neville, supposedly an Englishman. They agreed to go together to Russia. Because of suspicious circumstances they were several times molested by the Japanese. Hardy was arrested and found upon his person were papers showing maps of Jap forts. Hardy was proven guiltless. On a train he met Aisome Sano, daughter of a Jap merchant. In Neville's shoes Jap found pictures of forts, proving him to be a Russian spy. Hardy departed for Russia on a steamer, which was wrecked shortly afterward. He was rescued by a Russian steamer. On reaching Vladivostok he was well treated. He started for Siberia, meeting Princess Romanovna on the train. Hardy boarded a vessel for Amur. Hardy showed the princess his expertness as a rifle shot. The steamer was stranded. The princess and her maid were attacked by Chinese. Hardy saved their lives. The princess thanked Hardy for his heroism. Manchurians fired upon the craft. Hardy slew their chief. Burning arrows were hurled upon the Pushkin's decks. An attempt was made to board the vessel. The attacking Chinese were repulsed. Romanoff sneered at Hardy's solicitude for the princess. Stanka, a messenger sent for help, was nailed to a cross on the shore. To put an end to the awful torture Hardy himself put Stanka out of his misery, taking his own life in his hands. Forest fires menaced the vessel. Hardy volunteered to go for help. Refused permission he jumped overboard and started to swim with the princess' distress message. Romanoff was angry at Hardy for his brave efforts to rescue the princess. He wooed her in his own savage way. He said Hardy had made love openly to a Japanese girl. Help came and the princess was rescued. Hardy journeyed on a raft. Arriving at his destination he took charge of the trading company's business. Hardy received a letter from a social leader in Boston and another from Aisome. Hardy took lessons in Russian of a Jew, thus connecting himself in a way with that race. Hardy received a letter from the princess, thanking him for his bravery. Hardy's teacher was in danger of death. He employed Wang as a servant. Hardy went to Moscow, where he was invited to call upon the princess. He started for the palace home of Princess Romanovna. Hardy aroused unaccountable jealousy of his Korean boy by announcing that he was going to call on the princess. He engaged a cabman who drove him to a large house on a poorly lighted street. After entering the house, Hardy discovered that it was a resort of nihilists who supposed he was Feux Hulin, come to tell them of a powerful explosive he had discovered. The real Hulin arrived and denounced Hardy as an impostor. The nihilists determined to kill Hardy in order to protect themselves. Finding an unloaded revolver in his overcoat pocket, he pointed it at Hulin's bomb, which lay on the table, and swore to blow them all up together if they touched him. Holding the nihilists at bay, Hardy started to leave the room when the police were heard at the outer door. Hulin threw his bomb, killing several policemen, the nihilists fled and Baruch the Jew, suddenly appeared and led Hardy to the cellar. Baruch conducted Hardy through an underground passage to another house, from which he boldly emerged and returned to his hotel. Hardy visited the princess, contributed to the fund for the relief of the victims of the nihilists.

The American was puzzled for a moment. He knew why this handsome daredevil Russian had subscribed so large an amount. That Boris Romanoff was touched by the suffering of the poor was a thought to bring a smile to the face of any who chanced to know him.

Hardy was not rich, as we know. He had saved a few thousands from his fortune, and his salary and profits from commissions brought him a respectable income. He held his pen for a moment suspended, as he remarked, looking the princess quizzically in the eye:

"Your cousin is very tender-hearted, is he not—quite charitably disposed?"

"He has responded handsomely, has he not?" she replied, carelessly, but there was an amused look in her eye. "But he is rich and doesn't mind a little sum like this. Besides, he knows that I am anxious to make these poor people comfortable."

Hardy scribbled his name on the paper and handed it back carelessly to the princess.

"But, monsieur!" she gasped, "my friend, I could not accept so much from you! You have made some mistake here!"

He adjusted his gold pince-nez, looked critically at the paper, and read sotto voce:

"'Frederick Courtland Hardy, rubles 2,500.' No, that is quite correct, your highness. I shall take great pleasure in sending you a check in the morning. You have little idea of how this cause appeals to me."

The princess flushed and held the paper in her hand for some moments in silence, looking at it.

"The Americans are as generous as they are brave," she said at last, in a low voice, "I shall accept this noble gift on behalf of my poor people, in whose name I thank you."

At this moment a servant appeared at the door and announced:

"Lieutenant Gortchakov!"

"I regret that I must be leaving you now," said the Romanovna; "but stay! I should like to introduce you to the lieutenant. He is a great admirer of America and Americans. Show the lieutenant in, Aleko."

The lieutenant entered, tall, in his twenties, very slender and handsome. He was attired in the uniform of the Imperial Guards. Seeing the princess, he bowed very low, clicking his heels together. Then he walked rapidly to her, and, bending with exquisite grace and assurance, lifted her hand to his lips. After which he turned politely and inquiringly toward Hardy, who arose.

"Lieut. Gortchakov," said the princess, "this is Mr. Hardy, the brave American, of whom you have heard me speak. I desire you to be friends."

"It gives me great pleasure to make your acquaintance," said the lieutenant, extending his hand.

"The pleasure is mine, I assure you," replied Hardy.

"Gen. Catkoff has already told me of your heroic deeds on the Amur," said the lieutenant. "I have been hoping for some time that I might have the honor of meeting you. I had no idea that you were in Moscow."

Gortchakov was a frank, ingenuous youth, to whom the American took an immediate liking.

"I shall leave you two together," said the princess, rising, "while I go and get my wraps. Oh, by the way, Alexieff, why can we not drive Mr. Hardy by the Slaviansky Bazar? The lieutenant has a new pair of white Arabian horses, which he is anxious for me to see. I am sure that Mr. Hardy can appreciate fine horses."

"I shall be most happy," replied the lieutenant, "if Mr. Hardy will accept."

"Oh, I am sure he will," laughed the princess, "if he is sufficiently urged."

She left the room, and Gortchakov began to explain that he was driving her to a reception, and that the Slaviansky would be on the way. He had not been talking over a minute, when Boris Romanoff entered, superbly handsome in evening dress. An older man accompanied him. Romanoff shook hands cordially with Gortchakov, whom he addressed as "Alexieff," and to whom he introduced his companion, Gen. Koukolnik.

He did not introduce Koukolnik to Hardy, but said to the latter with an evil, insolent smile:

"Hello, Hardy, how's trade? But these Americans are enterprising!" he explained affably to the general. "This fellow here is a store-keeper, who, it seems, is working the Russian nobility for all he is worth. What's your scheme now? Tell us, that's a good fellow! You shall have our influence with the princess—she ought to be an easy mark, under the circumstances—eh, general?"

The American paled with rage, but he looked Romanoff full in the eyes, returning insolence for insolence.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The Princess Commands.

"Being only a merchant," replied the American, "I find it necessary to cultivate good manners to a certain extent. Were I a prince, I might also be a boor."

"Upon my soul!" exclaimed Gen. Koukolnik, "but this is a very peppery merchant!" The general's cheeks and nose were adorned with a network of varicose veins, the result of innumerable deep potations of vodka. He was that anomalous combination, an excitable fat man, and he had a habit of jerking so fiercely at his long, pointed side-whiskers that he pulled down the puffy underlid of his eye, disclosing the red conjunctiva.

Romanoff flushed with rage.

"Fellow," said he, "I am not going to waste any words with you. I grant you a certain degree of courage, considerable shrewdness and any amount of insolence. But you are making a sad mistake if you hope to force your way into high society simply because you happened to kill a Chinaman or two on the Amur. You may take advantage of my cousin's good nature, but you can not impose on the rest of us. The best thing for you to do is to accept a good, substantial check for your services to the family, and take yourself off. How much shall it be?"—and he pulled a check-book from his pocket. "Better take my advice and accept it now, while we are in the mood, and the offer is open."

"Upon my soul!" exclaimed Koukolnik.

"I suppose that I shall be offended at this later," drawled Hardy, "when I get to thinking over it. At the present you are too interesting as a study in—ah—zoology. I do not believe there is such another boor and ruffian living in all Moscow as you. Certainly, the Russians of the better class that I have met thus far have all been gentlemen."

"I trust this doesn't bore you, Alexieff, nor you, general," said Romanoff, "but I really must settle with this fellow once and for all, and have it over with. I met him first in Japan, where he played me a low trick, for which he, no doubt, received money from the Japanese authorities. He became infatuated with a woman of disreputable character there, and he and the woman had me put on a boat, ostensibly sailing for Vladivostok. I soon found out that I was to be imprisoned or put to death. This fellow remained in Japan with his paramour, and he came on here afterward at his leisure. I have had him watched since by the police, and it is certain that he is an enemy of the government, and perhaps a Japanese spy. It is known that he consorts with Jews, and I strongly suspect that he is himself an American Jew. The Romanoff family is, unfortunately, under certain obligations to him, for which I am offering to pay him liberally. Come, now, my man, how much shall it be?"

"There must surely be some mistake here," said Gortschakov. "I was introduced to Mr. Hardy by the princess, who recommended him to me as a possible friend. What have you to say to these accusations of the prince, Mr. Hardy?"

"Nothing," replied the American, "save that if we were not under the roof of a lady, I should tell Romanoff that I can not believe that he is mistaken—"

"You would have us think then—?" suggested Gortchakov.

"—that he is undoubtedly lying!"

"Have a care!" cried Romanoff, raising his voice. "Do not presume too far on the protection of the princess! Once more and for the last time, I ask you, how much do you want?"—and he thrust the check book under Hardy's nose.

"You are positively growing tiresome," said Hardy, and he flipped the book from Romanoff's fingers, so that it flew fluttering half-way across the room.

"Hell and furies!" exclaimed Romanoff. "Take that, you son of a dirty Jewess!"—and he struck Hardy violently in the face with the flat of his hand. The blow staggered the American and left a number of red welts, that contrasted strangely with the marble whiteness of his cheeks.

"This insult must be answered for elsewhere," he said in low, even tones. "Lieut. Gortchakov, I am a comparative stranger here; will you do me the honor of seconding me in this affair?"

"You want me to fight a duel with you?" laughed Romanoff. "With you, a Jew storekeeper? Leave this house instantly, or I shall have you kicked into the street."

"I am an American," Hardy explained to Gortchakov, "and the gentlemen of America earn their living by honest toil. Moreover, I am by birth and education a gentleman. Will you be my second?"

Gortchakov caught sight of a stately white figure standing in a distant door—the figure of a tall woman, wearing a long white opera cloak, a coronet blazing with diamonds surmounting her regal brow.

He extended his hand to Hardy.

"I will be your second," he said.

"Are you mad?" said Romanoff. "I can not fight with this low fellow, this tradesman."

"I know Mr. Hardy through the introduction of the Princess Romanovna," declared Alexieff; "that is quite sufficient for me."

"You will either fight me or I will horsewhip you on the public streets," insisted Hardy, not raising his voice. "I knew you to be a liar—I did not suspect that you were also a coward."

"Gentlemen, for shame!" cried the princess, advancing to the angry group, her eyes blazing with indignation. "Do you forget that you are in my house?"

"Bless my soul!" exclaimed Koukolnik, "it is the princess! Madame, I humbly salute you"—and clicking his heels together, he made a low bow.

"Ah, good evening, cousin," said Romanoff; "I beg your pardon for this disturbance, but really, this fellow here is to blame. I offered to pay him for the service which he has rendered to a member of the family. He knocked my check-book from my hand, and I very properly chastised his insolence by slapping his face. As the head of the family it is my duty to protect you from low adventurers. I demand now most decidedly that you bid him begone!"

"Oh, Boris!" cried the princess, more in sorrow than in anger, "out of your own mouth I condemn you. If you offered this gentleman money, I am obliged to decide that he did a very spirited and proper thing in knocking your check book from your hand. In the name of the Romanoff family, Mr. Hardy, I ask your pardon for this insult that has been heaped on you under my roof!"

"I will pardon him," replied Hardy, "after he has fought me, according to the custom among gentlemen in this country. He has struck me and he must give me satisfaction."

"What!" cried the princess, "a duel? It is ainst the law. I shall not permit it."

"This Jew, this shopkeeper, wants me to fight him," sneered Romanoff.

"Your highness has been pleased to express gratitude for certain services which I have been fortunate enough to render you—to express a hope that you might be able, in fact, to do something for me in return. I now demand a gentleman's satisfaction for this blow. It is all that I shall ever ask from the Romanoff family."

"I shall also pay you for the blow," snarled Romanoff.

The princess glanced indignantly at Romanoff, then turned her eyes searchingly on Hardy, who stood there, white to the lips, rigid as a statue, looking scornfully at her cousin.

"You must fight him, Boris," she said at last, in a voice low, yet perfectly distinct in the tense silence.

Romanoff bowed gracefully, with an evil smile.

"I shall kill him with pleasure, since you desire it," he said.

"My seconds will wait on you in the morning," said Hardy. "Madame, I am your debtor and grateful servant. I have the honor of wishing you good evening"—and he walked from the room.

CHAPTER XXXV.

The Princess Entreats.

In the preliminary arrangements for the duel, Lieut. Gortchakov represented the American with zeal and fidelity. Romanoff's seconds, fully aware of Hardy's reputation for skill with the pistol, objected to that weapon.

"Why, bless my soul!" exclaimed Gen. Koukolnik, "an exchange of bullets would be nothing less than murder, and none of us, as Russians, could permit that. This American could shoot his adversary through the heart or between the eyes without the least trouble in the world, and his hatred of him is so great that he will certainly do it. We can't permit that—upon my soul, we can't!"

"For the time being," replied Gortchakov, with firmness, "I shall forget that I am a Russian, and shall demand justice for the man who has asked me to represent him. My man has little or no knowledge of the rapier. A combat a l' outrance with swords would mean just as surely his destruction. He is, as you well know, the outraged party, and the choice of weapons should be his. Romanoff, moreover, is not unskillful with the pistol, and there is no doubt as to the quality of his nerve."

Fortunately for Gortchakov's contention, the Baron Koubelik, Koukolnik's associate, believed Hardy's reputation for skill greatly exaggerated.

"The fellow is a plebeian, too," he urged, "a mere tradesman, who will lose his nerve when made to stand up and be shot at. Take my word for it, Koukolnik, his arm will tremble like a dog's tail when you pat it on the head. If it were I, I'd rather shoot him down than dirty my sword on him, and I've no doubt in the world that Romanoff will feel the same. If we insist on the rapier, too, when this American is, as you know, the aggrieved party, we shall be casting a slur on our man's courage. No Russian nobleman fears any adversary, with any weapon."

By this time Koukolnik had taken so many potations of vodka that the bravado in this sentiment appealed to him.

"You are right!" he cried, "and pistols it shall be. Prince Romanoff shall shoot this tradesman down—he shall not soil his rapier on him."

Gortchakov was jubilant over this arrangement and he hastened to Hardy's quarters in the hotel to tell him of the success of his negotiations.

"All you have to do now," said the dapper young Russian, "is to shoot the great bully through the heart, or between the eyes."

Hardy glanced at Gortchakov's flushed face. He was struck by the eagerness of his manner, and his evident delight at Romanoff's mortal peril.

"Don't wait till he shoots first," counseled the lieutenant; "for he has a sort of awkward skill with the pistol himself. Take aim and shoot just as you hear the word 'three.' My associate and I will see that you do not get into serious trouble with the law. We shall testify to the grossness of the insult. The princess, too, will stand by you. Whatever her feelings for Romanoff, she is too much of a thoroughbred to see an injustice done, and she has great influence with the czar."

There was a slight break in Gortchakov's voice when he mentioned the name of the princess, an agitation in his manner that suggested a possible explanation of his hatred of Romanoff. Hardy remembered the adage: "All is fair in love and war."

The princess' beauty was of the sort that breeds murder in the hearts of men.

"If her highness loves her cousin," Hardy said, sadly, "killing him will not make her love him the less, or—or—us the more. She is not the sort of woman who loves twice in a lifetime."

"She does not, she can not, know what a worthless brute he is!" cried Gortchakov. "If she loves him, it would be saving her from a rate worse than death to kill him. And think of the insult which he heaped on you! And I assure you that you can kill him with perfect safety."

Hardy laid his hand on the younger man's shoulder.

"A gentleman does not think of the consequences to himself when he is vindicating his honor. I shall settle this score with Romanoff with a full realization of all the aggravating circumstances."

Gortchakov seized the American's hand impulsively.

"Pardon me, my friend," he said, "I intend no imputation on your courage; but there are others besides myself who are tired of this great bully, Romanoff."

"When is the meeting to take place?" asked Hardy.

"To-morrow morning at eight, in a grove on the banks of the river. If you will permit me, I shall call for you at half-past seven with my sledge, and shall drive you there."

"I shall be deeply indebted to you. And now, if you will take no offense, I shall ask you to excuse me, as I must get a good night's rest. There is no medicine like sleep, and plenty of it, to make the hand steady and the eye clear."

The young Russian glanced at the other admiringly.

"You have the nerve of a Russian!"

"Or of an American," replied Hardy, smiling. "You will find me ready at 7:30, and don't fail to be on time. We must not be one second late at this rendezvous."

Left to himself, Hardy sat for a long time with his head in his hands, thinking.

Of his ability to kill Romanoff at the distance agreed on—30 paces—he had not the slightest doubt. He was also aware that he stood a chance himself of being wounded, or of losing his life. Romanoff enjoyed the reputation of being a fair shot, though how much this meant in Russia, Hardy had no means of judging. Probably not much, according to American standards; but even a poor shot will sometimes hit the mark.

Was the princess in love with her cousin? The more Hardy debated this possibility in his mind, the more it took on the shape and tangibleness of probability. That she had commanded the prince to fight was no proof against the supposition. She came of fighting blood, and the man she loved must be no coward. Moreover, Hardy had taken advantage of her own princely word to himself, and had claimed fulfillment of the promise that she had made to him.

Charm of Flowers

ALL in the merry month of June, the flower-laden leghorn hat blossoms forth, with the roses and other winsome things of young summer. This, and the beautiful hair-braid hats are perennial favorites, not more or less, but always more popular. Every season the clever milliner who delights in these really beautiful shapes, must bethink her of some new touch in trimming, some new turn to brim, or some novel feature in manner of decorating, in order that the summer girl may not tire of these hats and run after new goods whose virtues are untried in the realm of millinery.

Ever since the oldest modiste can remember, June has seen the heads of fair wearers crowned with these staple shapes, trimmed with roses and ribbon. This year the new touch is found in velvet facings and in velvet-covered crowns. New ideas are shown also in silk or tulle roses and in the way in which brims are turned or shaped.

One factor in the success of their hats, beside their beauty, is their durability. One does not buy a leghorn or hair-braid hat for one summer, but for several. Therefore, it falls to the lot of the milliner to remodel and retrim the same shape several times. Her chances of turning out something pleasing and successful were never better than they are this year. A velvet facing or a velvet crown added to last year's leghorn changes its appearance completely. If the shape is considerably worn, both may be used; for perfectly new patterns, like that shown in the picture, are made up in this way.

It is the charm of flowers, the new beautifully colored roses, which is so enchanting and finally makes the last year's hat "as good as new" and perhaps better. If a velvet-covered crown seems a little dark or heavy, a sash of light ribbon or perhaps of tulle are added.

Many kinds of flowers are used for these hats, although the rose is the first choice. One cannot make a mistake in selecting the rose garland. Wreaths made of roses, gardenas, forget-me-nots and other flowers, with an occasional wisp of grass introduced have trimmed some of the handsomest patterns.

Big bouquets of roses and lilies of the valley have been favored, and on black hair-braid small, exquisitely made corn flowers or deep blue forget-me-nots with velvet ribbon in the same color, have proved the color combination beautiful.

These hats can be worn with any sort of costume for summer. With pretty white dresses they give a finishing touch harmonious to the last degree.

MASSAGE FOR TIRED FEET

Simple Home Remedies That Will Do Away With Fatigue and Relieve Discomfort.

The old East Indian method of giving scientific massage to the feet has been taken up again and is considered of great value to those who are fatigued.

First—The hands are moved upward, one after the other, on the raised feet, so that the blood is driven upward.

Second—The hand is moved in a rotary way from side to side, beginning at the toes and stopping at the middle of the calf.

Third—The palm of hand and the tips of fingers are applied in a rotary movement with great force and pressure.

Throughout all the massage the feet must be raised and supported. It is useless to do it when they are on a level with the head.

When the feet are burning, alcohol is one of the best tonics for them. It cools the skin and stimulates the muscles.

For aching feet nothing is better than hot vinegar and water. The feet should be allowed to stand in a basin of this for 15 minutes while the ankles are massaged with it.

Tied-In Skirts.

As far as the fashions have gone they show that we will continue to wear the skirt that is hampered in some way at the knees. It was originally called the aeroplane skirt—this model—and it now goes by the name of the tied-in skirt. That is an expressive description. The effect of being tied in is gotten through the sash or a stitched band or an ornament fold that holds whatever fullness there is at the knees.

Pumps for Street Wear.

The new pumps for street wear are made with ankle straps, which are an improvement over the pumps used last year, for they were scarcely practical for outdoor wear.

To be quite correct the stockings worn with pumps of this description should be plain and fine, of course.

This rule applies to the street only. For house wear any of the dainty styles in embroidered hose may be donned as suits the taste of the wearer.

Things to Know.

Lavender-scented sheets are said to induce slumber. Five cents' worth of dried lavender blossoms will scent the whole closet where they are kept.

When you have occasion to use plaster-of-paris mix it with vinegar instead of water.

Do not put away a glove that is still damp from the warmth of the hand.

GIRL'S SAILOR DRESS.

Either serge or linen would make up nicely in this style.

The skirt has a tight-fitting yoke cut with a point in front; the lower part is plaited and joined to yoke. The blouse is an ordinary sailor style, and has the collar and singlet edged with braid. A sailor's knot is tied below the collar.

Materials required: Six and one-half yards 46 inches wide, six yards braid.

GOATS ASSIST RAILROAD

ONE OF THE LEADERS

A BUNCH OF KIDS

THE Union Pacific railroad has discovered a new use for billy goats and every day at half a hundred stock feeding stations on the line of the big railroad system, solemn goats with long white beards act the part of Judas, luring unsuspecting sheep to their doom. Little did the grave members of the Interstate Commerce commission think when they made a ruling that live stock en route from the great western ranges to the packing houses along the Missouri river, should not be kept aboard railroad trains for more than 28 consecutive hours, but that, at the expiration of that period, the animals should be taken from the cars and given water and provender that the ruling would be responsible for the creation of a band of goats trained to ingratiate themselves into the confidence of innocent little lambs, matronly ewes and stately rams and bring these down to their death.

But such is the case. And the Union Pacific railroad has a flock of goats, each individual member of which can do better work along the lines for which it is trained than half a dozen men could do in twice the time.

When the 28-hour law went into effect the Union Pacific railroad found it necessary to build big feeding yards at numerous points along its line—in fact, these yards were installed about every 25 miles from end to end of the big system. During the shipping season that railroad brings hundreds of thousands of sheep from the great ranges of Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Oregon, Montana, California and the southwestern states to the packing houses at Omaha. Under the new law it was necessary that these sheep be unloaded, fed and watered, and then reloaded every 28 hours.

Those men who have ever attempted to drive sheep will remember how difficult the task is, especially to get the animals headed in the right direction. "As timid as a sheep" is a proverb, and its truth is proven every day and every hour wherever sheep are handled.

If the sheep are in the stock cars it is a big job to get them out. Efforts of the attendants to get them to leave the cars usually result in the whole bunch crowding up in one end and refusing to go out the door. Sometimes it was even necessary that each individual sheep be actually lifted up and taken from the car.

And sometimes this 28-hour limit expired in the dead of night, when the sheep were all lying asleep on the floor of the car. At such times it was almost impossible to unload except by the "hand" method. At times half an hour was consumed in unloading a single car.

After the sheep were fed and watered came the reloading, and again there was trouble, almost as much as when unloading.

The railroad found it necessary to maintain a large force of men at each feeding station, it being found more economic to do this than to spend hours and hours loading and unloading a train. This cost money, and lots of it, but there seemed no means of avoiding the expense. There stood the United States courts ready to inflict a $100 fine every time a car of sheep was not fed and watered every 28 hours. Employing the men was cheaper than fines.

One day a stockman who had come into South Omaha with a train of sheep dropped in at Union Pacific headquarters to see General Superintendent W. L. Park on business, and in the course of his conversation began telling of the trip down from Idaho. He had had lots of trouble loading and unloading, he said, until he reached North Platte, Neb.

"But there I saw the funniest thing in my life," he laughed. "The station agent there has a boy and that boy has a goat—just a plain old billy goat. And that billy goat has learned to chew tobacco.

"When we got ready to load our sheep, that kid took a plug of tobacco in his hand and started. Billy started after the tobacco. The kid walked through the sheep and old Billy followed him. And blamed if all those sheep didn't walk right after that old goat. They thought he was one of them, and you know a sheep will follow where another one leads.

"The boy walked up the chute into one of the cars. Billy was right behind him and sheep were simply falling over themselves to get in. The boys and Billy, remained near the door and when the car was filled with sheep they got out and the door was closed.

"That freckle-faced kid and that old billy goat did in five minutes what half a dozen men could not have done in ten."

The stockman saw only a funny occurrence in the work of the goat, but Park saw the solution of a big problem.

Two hours later a special train carrying the general superintendent left the Omaha yards, its destination being North Plattte. On arriving there the boy proudly made Billy show off.

Within a month every feeding station on the Union Pacific system was equipped with a couple of billy goats and their training was begun.

Today, when a long line of stock cars, each filled with sheep, draws up at a feeding yard, one of these goats is sent up the chutes and into the car among the sheep. He quickly makes the acquaintance of the newly arrived animals and then calmly walks out the door. True to the idea of following a leader, the sheep fall in line and march out behind old Bill.

This action is repeated until all the cars are emptied—and then Bill gets his reward—a chew of tobacco.

The goats have learned to chew tobacco from the train men who pet and tease them whenever they have the opportunity, and the "chew" is usually given them as a reward when their task of unloading a train of sheep is completed. The railroad company makes a regular allowance to pay for tobacco for these goats.

When ready to reload, the goats are again sent among the sheep, with whom they frolic a few minutes, and then they start for the cars, followed by the sheep. When all cars are loaded the goats receive another chew of tobacco.

The feeding yards are all equipped with electric lights so that cars may be loaded and unloaded at night, thus saving much time. And when a train arrives at night, especially are the goats necessary. At such times they enter the cars where the sheep are lying on the floor and butt the sleeping animals around until they are thoroughly awakened—and then they lead them out into the feeding pens.

These goats are great favorites of the railroad men and seem to know every brakeman and train employee on their division. But not a single one of the railroaders is more necessary to the economical operation of the line than is one of the Bills, and none of them do more work for their salaries than the goats for their feed and tobacco.

The facility of the goat for this work has long been known at the packing houses, where they are utilized to lead animals to slaughter.

Speaking of the Divorce Evil

Trying to succeed in business without advertising is like the case of the man who, trying to cut expenses, divorced his wife and alone attempted to keep house and raise his children. It cost him more money for doctor bills and funeral expenses in a year than he gave his wife in a lifetime.

When advertising is divorced, business success becomes failure.

This paper is building your neighbor's business. He has reasons. He tried advertising and it helped him. It is not an experiment — this paper brings results. Good, hard, convincing results — dollars.
